

Women's EHF EURO 2010

Live internet broadcast: watch it free of charge!

Vienna, 16 November 2010 – The biggest women's national team event of this year in Denmark & Norway, the Women's EHF EURO 2010, is coming up from 7-19 December 2010. The games will be broadcast live on TV in around 65 countries worldwide.

To make sure that handball fans – no matter where they live – do not miss the 47 games of the tournament, the matches will be streamed on the internet.

Continuing with the popular live streaming service introduced at the previous EHF EURO Events, the official EHF EURO website, www.ehf-euro.com, will once again offer all matches live as well as on a "Video on Demand" delayed service from the EHF Women's EURO 2010 in Denmark & Norway.

The service will enable global viewing of the EHF EURO, offering flexible viewing options to fans – for the first time ever – on a free of charge basis.

All games of the EHF Women's EURO in Denmark & Norway will be available on the internet at a 500 kbit/s rate as well as at a 1.0 Mbit/s rate so that users can optimise the service to their own technical possibilities.

For the streaming service energy from renewable sources is used.

Please note that due to licence restrictions it will not be possible for users from Germany, France, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Belarus to watch the video stream in their territories.
